

The European Banking Union and Its Instruments

Experience from the First Years of an Interplay with National Banking Supervision and Resolution

WORKSHOP ORGANISED BY PROFESSORS GIORGIO MONTI, STEFAN GRUNDMANN, DALVINDER SINGH (WARWICK, UK) AND CHRISTY PETIT (EUI RESEARCHER)

EUROPEAN UNIVERSITY INSTITUTE
11 OCTOBER 2016

SALA DEL CONSIGLIO – VILLA SALVIATI
VIA BOLOGNESE 156, I-50139 FIRENZE, ITALY

After two years of existence, it is time to focus on what happened in practice for the Single Supervisory Mechanism (SSM) and the Single Resolution Mechanism (SRM), i.e. in the core of the Banking Union, in Member States and beyond the EU. The workshop gathers as broad a range of perspectives as possible with a variety of countries (ins and outs, including non-participating Member States and third countries, crisis and non-crisis countries), levels (national, supra- and international), and backgrounds (academic and supervisory practice).

A good range of the most important issues will be discussed, namely: to what extent does the regulatory framework under the Single Rulebook assist or hinder centralized decision-making? Have the Joint Supervisory Teams (JST) proven to be a tool to have both a sufficiently high information basis on the local level of the banks supervised and robust enough a membership to avoid capture? Has the split of supervisory competences in the SSM created problems or can it be seen as a sensible scheme?

But also, if the purpose of the SRM, as part of the Banking Union project, is to centralize resolution decision-making, to what extent does discretion remain within the national authorities? To what extent should all classes of retail financial services be exempted from bail-in? To what extent does Minimum Requirement for own funds and Eligible Liabilities (MREL) under the BRRD framework and the Total Loss Absorbing Capacity (TLAC) standard developed by the Financial Stability Board (FSB) give raise to a one size fits all approach to resolution?
